“ I often sat by Carol in class at Sutton Public School. She was always a happy person and very easy going. Sometimes when I would ask her for questions about the homework or class subject, we would both shrug our shoulders and then start talking. We would start to tease each other and make faces at each other. Carol always would start laughing and then point at me, make a steering wheel motion, then point at herself and then do a crazy circle motion around her ear. I would say, “Carol, I know that means I am driving you crazy!” And she and I would laugh. I never had a moment when Carol was mean at all. She was truly a nice person. God bless you Carol.
