Eric (and Emily) enjoyed a variety of hobbies including gardening and canning food from their garden, playing video games and watching movies, hiking, collecting items, fishing and more. They enjoyed their pet cats and ducks immensely. Eric loved family. In his final years, Eric grew into the life he had always sought. He was a man with a tender heart and sweet smile that was contagious to those around him. His sense of dry humor and clean jokes lit up any room he entered. He was genuine and authentic. He closed the door of this life with a strong dedication and love for his Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.
